Hello,

I just stopped writing my initial email, donated $25 + fees to Wayback Machine, and now I am back.

My question is a simple one -

What is your criteria for someone being able to contact you and request that their information be removed from the web archive? I'm guessing that normally requests come from individuals as opposed to businesses?

My only reason for asking is because I am relying on your site as my main piece of evidence against a company who is very stealthily editing, re-wording, and re-linking a bunch of stuff on their website in an effort to establish a history which isn't true for the purpose of trying to steal something of significant value from me.

What I would like to do is personally, or through an attorney very kindly contact them and let them know that I can very clearly see what they are doing in an effort to try and get them to correct their course early on so I don't have to worry about it - or at the very least they will have to contend with the fact that I have solid evidence that could get them convicted of fraud and decide whether or not that is a risk they are willing to take.

My main worry however is that they could just contact your company and get everything deleted and so that has been bothering me somewhat and has been a pretty large factor in my decision making.

Any insight or knowledge about this topic would be greatly appreciated.

Thank you,

Matt Guertin
